

Public Outreach

Permanente Creek Flood Protection Project

The Santa Clara Valley Water District values community feedback on its proposed projects. With the engagement of the public and stakeholders, sustainable designs were developed that are economically viable, technically feasible, environmentally compatible and publicly acceptable. The water district continues to work with the community and partners, including the County of Santa Clara, and the cities of Mountain View, Los Altos and Cupertino.

Other outreach

Permanente Creek Task Force:

A committee of volunteer residents from Mountain View, Los Altos and Cupertino, and staff from the cities of Mountain View and Los Altos was set up in 2003 to assist the Project team in Project planning. The Task Force received detailed information and analysis during the planning of the Project and provided evaluation of the problem definition, Project elements, conceptual plans, and feasible alternatives. Seven meetings were held between 2003 and 2010.

Executive Committee:

An executive committee composed of the city managers of Mountain View, Los Altos and Cupertino, an assistant executive representing the County of Santa Clara, the County Parks manager, and the Water District CEO was set up in 2007. Six meetings have been held thus far.
